

SERVICE OF WORSHIP

October 7, 2018 • 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m.

ABOUT TODAY'S SERVICE

We conclude "Prophet and Lost Statements," our sermon series on Jonah. This short story is packed with meaning and relevant teaching, but one theme often overlooked is the presence of animals in this story. There is the fish, of course. The flocks and herds of Nineveh wear sackcloth (that has to be a first!). A very important worm makes an appearance in chapter 4. But perhaps nothing is more puzzling than the ending of the story, when God's concern includes not only the people of Nineveh, but "also many animals." On this World Communion Sunday, we pause to remember that God's devotion is not just to the people of the world, but to the world.

We are happy to be offering our new Angel Choir, a preschool choir for 3 and 4-year-olds led by Jenny Hull. The Prelude Choir is for Kindergarten-2nd grade, and is led by Rebecca Enslow and Kate Beebe. The Hallelujah Choir, for 3rd through 6th graders, is led by Will Breytspraak. It's not too late to join – just contact Jenny Hull, music coordinator, at 913-671-2385 or jenny.hull@villagepres.org. We are thankful for all of our children at Village, and are so glad they are with us in worship today.

THE CHURCH'S BOOK (Week of October 8, 2018)

The following daily Bible readings were written by Rev. Hallie Hottle and are offered for your own personal devotion. You are invited to read the text, think about the reflection and questions and allow these to lead you in a time of prayer. Pray for your own journey of faith, pray for Village Church, pray for the community around you, and pray for all of creation.

Monday, Oct. 8

Psalm 145

Our psalm today uses the same words Jonah does to describe God. "Gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love." These same words appear in Exodus, Nehemiah, and again in Psalm 86. These are important attributes of our God, to be repeated in this way. How might you need to remember that God is merciful, slow to anger, and full of love for you this week?

Tuesday, Oct. 9

Psalm 42

This psalm offers us a strange refrain, "Why are you cast down, my soul, and why are you disquieted within me?" Our psalmist seems to be speaking to his own soul, questioning the disquiet within him. It sounds strange, but I suspect we know what it means to wonder about our inner unsettling. When you pray today, spend some time in silence and see what bubbles up from your soul. What are you really longing for this week?

Wednesday, Oct. 10

Psalm 1

Our very first psalm comes to us as a sort of beatitude. "Happy (or blessed) are those who do not follow the advice of the wicked..." This language is used throughout the rest of the psalms. Distinctions are drawn between the "righteous" and the "wicked." It's hard to read in our modern context without allowing our minds to wonder to judgement, just who are the righteous and the wicked? Re-read this psalm a few times today, and resist the temptation towards judgement. Instead, allow yourself to wonder, in what ways are you both experiencing the "happiness" of those who follow God, and the "wickedness" that comes with being far away from God's desires for us? We're often in both camps at the same time.

Thursday, Oct. 11

Psalm 97

Our psalm begins with illustrations of clouds, fire, lightening and mountains that melt like wax. Our ancient authors often refer to images of nature around them when meditating on God's greatness. Take some time today, and look outside at the world around you. How is God reflected in what you can see? Write it down. Draw a picture. God is in it all, so take some time to notice.

Friday, Oct. 12

Psalm 51

We end our week with a psalm of confession, praying "create in me a clean heart, O God." Before you begin the weekend, spend some time in this psalm, wondering honestly where you fell short this week. Never is confession meant to shame. Always it allows us to live more closely in relationship with the God who hears, who understands, who delights in cleaning us up and walking with us to try it all again.

Saturday, October 13

Psalm 138

This psalm says, "You increased my strength of soul." It's a strange line, but a beautiful one. This weekend, if you can, make some space for your soul. Do something that gives you joy. Rest in such a way you find something that feels like restoration. Maybe make the amends that have been troubling your heart. Pray for God to strengthen your soul, and do something to help God in that work.

NEW SERMON SERIES

Living Toward God's Promised Day

William Faulkner once wrote, "The past is never dead. It's not even past." There is wisdom in these words, as our yesterdays show up in both predictable and unexpected ways. Nevertheless, the Christian faith provides a different way to look at our day. As Christians we are not primarily defined by our past, but by a future promised day. It is a day when God makes right that which we cannot heal. Of course, we only see glimpses of it in our lives, but it is a day that is trustworthy and true. This is why my last words to you each Sunday are "live toward God's promised day." For we are not defined by our yesterdays, not even our grand ones, but by a tomorrow we have yet to see.
